

MRA names Best Residential Metal Roofing Project winner for final quarter of 2021

Q4 2021 Winner

A beautiful home renovation project in Portland, Ore., that achieved a stunning combination of impressive performance and aesthetics has been selected by the Metal Roofing Alliance (MRA) as its 4th quarter and final winner of its Best Residential Metal Roofing Project competition for 2021. The inspiration behind the home's beautiful metal roof was a desire by the homeowner to completely rebuild and renovate their 1910 home in a way that maintained its original clean lines while incorporated best performing building materials. Given the home's location in a region that receives heavy rain and moisture in the winter and spring, but has hot, dry summers that make wildfire danger a serious threat, low maintenance and protective metal roofing turned out to be the perfect choice.

The beautiful dark standing seam metal roof complements the home's clean lines with its unique Northwest modern style and provides maximum peace of mind, especially given the home's site is surrounded by trees.

"This project demonstrates how choosing a quality metal roof can accentuate great architectural design and offer easy to care for, low maintenance protection for many years to come," said Renee Ramey, MRA executive director. "The homeowners are thrilled with their choice. They appreciate their new roof so much, they also decided to use metal for siding on the upper story and chose metal roofing for their second home on the Oregon Coast as well."

Quality installation also set the project apart. The old roof had failed after just 12 years due in part to a sub-par installation job. Many of the flimsy asphalt shingles had detached, sliding all the way off which put the structural integrity of the home in jeopardy. Full Service Roofing & Remodeling made sure the new metal roof was installed correctly, paying close attention to small details such as the ridgeline. With the final 2021 quarterly winner selected, the 2022 Q-1 competition for MRA's Best Residential Metal Roofing competition is now open and the Alliance is kicking off some exciting new changes this year. The quarterly competition is open to all homeowners as well as builders, contractors and roofing installers in the U.S. and Canada (where allowable) who believe their metal roof project is the best based on either performance, style or both. The MRA is offering a $300 cash prize to each quarter's winner and will showcase them in the organization's marketing efforts. To enter MRA's 2022 Best Residential Metal Roofing competition, simply upload a photo and a short project description at <https://woobox.com/kz4fzh>. For updated rules and more information, visit www.metalroofing.com.

